Summary of the Careers Programme

Uplands Community Primary School takes every opportunity to ensure that the pupils of the school are aware of different job pathways they may decide to pursue.

This is done by raising the pupils' awareness of as many different jobs, occupations and professions as possible throughout the delivery of the curriculum.

As part of the careers programme on offer, people from different fields of work are invited into school to deliver workshops and talk about their jobs. This is with the intention of inspiring the children to find out about the different jobs out in the real world.

How can pupils, parents, teachers and employers access information about the careers programme?

All stakeholders can find out about the careers programme at Uplands by making contact with James Powell, who is responsible for the career programme on offer.

How the school measures the impact of the careers programme on pupils:

The pupils are asked their views on the careers programme on offer during pupil voice interviews.
